Business Connections

The human face is made up of 144 muscles and 14 bones. Everything you want to know about a person is literally written on their face.

Face Reading for Business

Without a doubt our greatest asset in business is our ability to communicate and understand our clients, prospects, employees and colleagues. Without asking a single question you can know a person's preferred style of doing business. Face Reading will expand your communication skills and provide you with deep insights into the person's unexpressed inner thoughts and feelings.

Learn 10 traits that will help you answer questions like:

- Should I present one thing at a time or multiple ideas?
- Should I get right to the point or be more diplomatic?
- Should I expect a quick decision process or a long one?

About the Speaker:

Lin Klaassen is considered one of the world's top experts in the field of Face Reading. She has been lecturing internationally for over 23 years; she presents workshops on both Face Reading and Body Language and serves as a business, relationship, jury and poker consultant to clients in 45 countries. The physical structure of the human face is a living history of a person and it can be read like a book. For more information on Lin or Face Reading, go to www.FaceReadingByLin.com. Books will be available for purchase.
